

Document Provided for ER:

I-20, DS-160 confirmation, SEVIS fee receipt, admission letter, and assistantship offer.

ER Reason:

Dear Concern,

I would like to make an emergency appointment for my F1 visa application. I am a prospective PhD student and I have been offered admission with a fully funded graduate assistantship by [Dept, University name] for the [Semester name] semester.

My semester is scheduled to begin on [Start Date], with orientation typically held one week prior. However, the earliest visa appointment I was able to secure is on [Interview Date]. This delay would prevent me from joining the program on time and may result in the loss of my assistantship. Moreover, relocating to the United States includes many hurdles, such as securing proper accommodation which is particularly hard in the fall semester due to high demand.

As a full-time lecturer currently employed at [Work place], I am obligated to provide adequate notice. Securing an expedited visa appointment would greatly facilitate a smoother transition and enable me to meet both my academic commitments and professional responsibilities in a timely and efficient manner.

I kindly request your consideration in expediting my visa application process. Enclosed are the supporting documents: I-20, DS-160 confirmation, SEVIS fee receipt, admission letter, and assistantship offer.

Thank you for your time and understanding.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
